Faculty Coverup Over Men and Women

West Side (AP) — There is a new craze on Christendom's campus, and it is called PDA. Though it has been around for quite awhile, only recently have the violation sheets been flying across Mr. Brown's desk like a litter of kittens shot out of a potato gun.

Needless to say, these rampant reports have greatly alarmed the campus faculty, who have involved themselves in a clandestine attempt to 'stop the madness.' Their plan? Confuse the student body as to the true natures of women and men by implanting false ideas through the use of carefully planted and well-trained propagandists posing as "good students" (also known as poster children), and by forcing attendance at "the talk" — the one at the beginning of the semester where the freshman are held bound in a carefully controlled same-sex environment, and subjected to whatever bits of "advice" the headmasters see fit to impart.

Of course, not all of our beloved faculty are involved in this heinous plot, and likewise, not all the students are fooled. The researchers in CWOD Laboratories Int., having mastered the arts of invisibility and scientific research, have worked diligently in the CWOD lab (the bathroom of Suite 8) and in the CWOD office (middle room of Suite 9) to discover the true secrets of men and women, which have been hidden for so long by certain "ruthless" oppressors.

They have been successful.

Here, then, are the fruits of their labors: the truth about male/female stereotypes, exposed in complete and blood-chilling detail. Hopefully, this will be a great aid in relieving your relationship woes.

Male Stereotypes.

1) MEN ARE STUPID. False. This is only true when women are involved. Method of discovery: long hours of observation of CWOD couch behavior.

The control group, which lacked women entirely, spent their time discussing Plato's Republic and solving algebraic functions. The experimental group, however, exposed to the company of women, first discussed the merits of hamster sculpting, and then proceeded to pummel each other with large sticks.

2) MEN ARE LAZY. False. They are merely conserving their energy for that long walk to dinner. Method of discovery: observation.

Using keen research skills, consisting of being men, it was discovered that, upon being well-fed, men will proceed to commit any one of the above-mentioned acts (see #1) with great vigor — especially the part about the sticks. However, before proper nourishment, men store their energy by sleeping, often through class.

(It is the opinion of the CWOD that men should not be held accountable for this. After all, these conclusions are scientific!)

3) MEN ARE STUBBORN AND CHILDISH. ARE NOT!

'Nuff said.

4) MEN CAN'T MAKE A COMMITMENT. False. You have obviously never seen a guy every Monday night during football season. Method of discovery: This one is just common sense. Football or Women? Where's the contest?

Football will always let you hangout with the guys. Football never asks you why you were late, or where you were last night. Football always respects whatever you have to say. And football NEVER has one bad week out of the month.

5) MEN ARE SLOBS. False. They are collecting camouflage. Method of discovery: Library research and specimen study.

Through diligent study of the long-lost anthropological works of St. Randy of the Redwoods, and firsthand living experience with Andy Hibel, it has been discovered that men simply have retained a survival instinct that causes them to collect camouflage. The more camouflage, the less chance of getting eaten by a ravenous horde of sea monkeys.

Female Stereotypes.

1) WOMEN JUST DON'T UNDERSTAND THE IMPORTANT THINGS.

False. They just don't put pizza and a six pack of beer high on the priority list.

Method of discovery: spy.

Unbeknownst to most men, women actually place importance on stuff like what their men wear, and whether or not they eat their vegetables. This information was brought to CWOD Laboratories by an infiltrator in the poster child program, where there is ready access to top-secret faculty documents.

2) WOMEN ARE OVERLY SENSITIVE.

False. She just happens to know where you were last night. Method of discovery: by accident.

After getting drunk one night while mixing certain rare chemicals, one CWODite locked himself in the lab and sniffed the fumes from the newly-made concoction. When he was found three hours later, it was revealed that he had acquired the mental capacities of a woman. While his ability to reason was seriously impaired, he obtained the amazing skill of reading minds, thus enabling him to know exactly what his rescuers were thinking. Unfortunately, the formula wore out in a few more minutes, preventing more serious study.

3) WOMEN ALWAYS DATE THE WRONG GUY. False. If that were true, the guys at St. Francis would have a full social calendar.

'Nuff said.

4) WOMEN THINK THEY KNOW EVERYTHING. False. Women know everything. Method of discovery: the famous accident, eavesdropping, and spying.

If the fume sniffing incident did not occur, the researchers just would have gone on with life. But, shortly after the accident, the researchers began to wonder if women had other unrealized mental abilities. Tapping the lobbies of both 1st and 2nd floors of Campion, the scientists overheard mention of a mysterious brain machine which contains all the knowledge women need to know, and to which they have a mystical connection. They merely have to ask the machine, which they serve, the question for which they desire an answer, and it gives it to them.

Not to be fooled by gossip, the researchers called upon the CWOD Knights to ferret out this machine, examine it if it was real, and destroy it if it could do as reported. Their secret 'raid' uncovered this vile machine, but they were unable to destroy it with their meager arsenal. Supplies have been ordered to rectify this situation.

5) WOMEN ARE NUTS. False. They are playing with your mind. Method of discovery: torture.

"A disturbing, yet horrifying conclusion," said one analyst. Through careful interviews with a Campion insider, it was revealed that women find these little mind games amusing. One of their personal favorites is "Let's pretend we like him, make him buy us stuff, and then say we just want to be friends."

It is the opinion of men everywhere that this cruel practice is barbarism at its worst, and must be stopped.

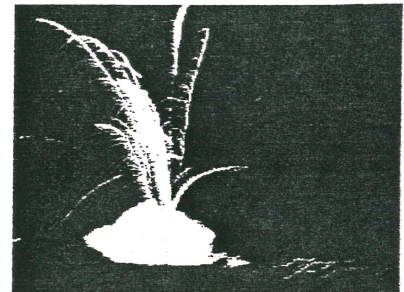

"So there you have it. The truth. We, the researchers, hope that this information will help you feel better about that recent PDA violation, and put you one step closer to the proper practice of the art of PDA. But our job will not be done until you, as God-fearing students, are free to hold hands with whoever you darn well feel like, after having broken through the barriers placed on your minds by those who, 'Just don't want anyone to feel left out.'" (Anonymous.)

Ritualistic Fire Worship In CWOD?

The Doctor (AP) — The casual observer of the CWOD during the day will see a scene full of peace and tranquility. However, should you ever venture into the CWOD at night, strange things will pass before your eyes.

Mad, dancers, male and female, dance around glowing coals, shouting and waving flaming braziers that contain the sacrificial foods. Some are tall, and relaxed, but others do not even touch the height of five feet, and animatedly dance about laughing maniacally in high pitched voices.

Should you approach the ceremonial CWOD throne, as wide as a divan, you will have to peer through a cloud of small, waving firebrands. There you will see fiendishly attired men and women, the apparent rulers of this scene. The men exhibit long hair and devilish features, with tufts which protrude from their chins in such manner that makes them seem satyrs. Occasionally members of this elect few will get up, throw their fire brands away from themselves, and face off: at which point they lock arms and kick at each other. The woman which appears to be the queen figure does this most frequently, and the most animatedly, though the male partners vary. Then they resume their seats on the throne and draw more brands from their pockets, and the ritualistic waving begins all over again.

This odd set of activities certainly bears more research, but it seems to the writer that something most certainly akin to ritualistic fire worship is going on in the CWOD.

Study in the CWOD

Nighthawk (AP) — Some think that, with all the partying, socializing, noise, and gaming that goes on in the CWOD, no one ever studies in there. This is no longer true, for many steps have been taken to insure that study takes place in Madonna Hall.

The first is girlfriends. Apparently they also care about their boyfriends grades, and want them to study. The boyfriends, caring for the grades of their girlfriends, want their female companions to study as well. This mutual desire for each others academic well being caused the development of a mostly cost-free date called the study-date. It simply consists of the couple, some books, and an upcoming quiz or test. The one without a test helps the one with a test to study, thereby helping their love to get good grades, while they get to spend time with their loved one.

That, however, is for the whipped. The rest of the CWODites study after midnight, take a break around 2 or 3 AM, and then return to their studies. Research indicates that they have higher grades due to this form of undistracted study, but they are also four times as likely to grow long incisors, and start wearing black capes with cool red lining on the inside.

Ask Dr. Science

Q: Dear Dr. Science: I'm in a new computer class, and my professor couldn't answer this, but I was wondering if you could help me. Why do computers count in the binary system? I mean why don't they count in 3's or 4's? (Bob Bridgewater: Newport, VA)

A: Dear Reader: Your ignorance appals me. The Reason computers count in the binary system is because they only have 2 fingers. We, born with 10, would be better off with computers that use a decimal counter system. The first computer, incidentally, was invented in 1664 by Sir Rav-Copal, a mathematician in Calcutta, who devised a wood and India-rubber computer based on the number of fingers on the many hands of Quishnu, the Hindu God of irrefutable logic, and who happens to be my father by the way. I recall that the number was 64,280. Not much work was done on that computer, though it was beautiful to look at. The English confiscated it in the 19th century and turned it into a loom, which they exported to Northern Ireland. There it was used to make shirts and enslave the populace.

Q: Dear Dr. Science: What Exactly is SPAM, and where does it come from? Is it safe to eat? (Sean Wilkes: Sary, Indiana)

A: Dear Reader: SPAM grows from a spore. How did the spore get inside the can? It's the result of parthenogenic exulgism, a process involving bad smells, ill will, poor posture, and negative vibrations from a doomed military-industrial complex. I happen to enjoy SPAM, as millions do. But that doesn't deny the fact that this process has a checkered past and an unsightly present. Still it holds great charms for millions of consumers. As a matter of fact, just thinking about it makes me hungry, but don't take my word for it.

Q: Dear Dr. Science: I just replaced the windshield wipers on my car, and I noticed that the driver's side wear out so much faster than the passenger's side. Why is that? (Pat Kessler: Omaha, NE)

A: Dear Reader: Occasionally I get at least one intelligent question out of the millions of letters I receive on a daily basis. This is not one of them. First of all, it seems that rain does not cause windshield wiper wear. Instead, invisible (yet very real) rays emanate from a driver's eyes, causing the wipers to wear out. Swatting those rays is a tough job, and the rubber tends to fray along the edges, especially if the driver is irritable and producing more caustic rays than usual. Sometimes, given the presence of a backseat driver, the passenger wiper can wear at an equal rate, but this condition is rare and only occurs if the driver is serene as the passenger is irritable.

One way to prolong the life of your wipers is to wear dark sunglasses while driving. These block the rays, but inhibit vision, which is something you don't want at night or during a rainstorm. As always, the best solution is prevention: have your blades replaced at least once a week.

CWOD Personals

SWM seeking despair and loneliness. Oh, wait. I already have that. Never mind. (If you think you can help this man, see CWOD 15.)

SWM seeking pretty SWF with ChArAcTeR who wants to have a GooooD TIME! Must enjoy dancing, impromptu romantic walks, and all kinds of music but Country, Heavy Metal, and Rap. Love of Harry Connick Jr. music a must. Must hate Cowboy Junkies, and campus dinners on Fridays. Must love to Rock at CWOD Anti-social bonfires and other CWOD events. Skill in giving backrubs is a major plus. Love to sing or just don't mind when others constantly break into rapturous song? Come to the penthouse of CWOD 14 and check out your ideal man!

SWM seeking real woman. Is tired of lonely CWOD type geeks who write personals, and wants to meet the right woman who will rescue him from boring CWOD fires and the usual.

Looking for an incredibly good-looking, brilliant, funny, and generally perfect fellow? I'm right here! Stop by CWOD 19 and discover the secret of the Norse Gods. Ecce Bjorn!

SWM seeking female for life-long companionship, mutual love, and affection. Labrador or retriever breeds preferred. See CWOD 18 for details.

SBM seeking SWM with Jeep for four-wheeling escapades after curfew. See CWOD 15 for details.

SWM seeking cute woman who enjoys music, dancing, and life in general. Love of volleyball is a must. Love of the theater, great literature, dead languages, and classic philosophy are a plus. Green eyes are a definite plus. Time in Leavenworth is a minus, but workable. Must not have biceps bigger than mine. Love guys with wicked nicknames, and true class? Visit the first floor of CWOD 14 learn the Italian "Art of Love."

SWM seeking woman who loves men with long hair, breathing in second-hand smoke, and petting goatees. Must hate country music. Pyromania is a plus. Vital signs not necessary. See CWOD 15.

SWM seeking SWF Angel with which to grow closer to God and spend quality time. Enjoyment of mediocre poetry from the heart and flowers is a must. Love of independence with a willingness to learn some dependence is a plus. Interest in seeing Europe in '97 is another definite plus. Sanity is not desired. Oh wait, I already have this. Thank You Lord! (If you think this man is pathetic and in need of your help, stop by the second floor of CWOD 14.)

SWM looking for SWF to make his liver quiver. Brunettes are preferred, but blondes are accepted. Must love country music. See CWOD 13 for further details.

SWF (alias: Strawberry _____ Cake) seeking no one for clubbing, white-water rafting, and skydiving. Must enjoy camping in a tent with 25 leaky holes and loads of skeeters.

Although I retain a personal love for cleaning, you must be able to cook, sew, and be able to do more push-ups than me. (If you cannot cook: you must love very crisp (a la flambe) food.) Love of man-eating animals is a must. Tickle fetish not desired. May not have any inordinate desire to shut females in small enclosed objects. May not have long, greasy hair. Must hate Coke and any music by Hootie & the Blowfish. Anachrophobia sucks. Must not be an obsessive flower giver. If you are still interested, bring a ring-tailed Koala-bear to Blessed Margaret and ask for "Bullseye."

SWM seeking gorgeous brunette to have and hold forever. Oh, wait I already have that. Never mind. (If you think you can lead this man astray, see CWOD 15.)

SWM (Single White Misogynist) seeking lovely, submissive SWF from an impoverished foreign country who is desperate for American citizenship.

Scripture Quote

Book of Dorms 12:

Now the Lord said to Jay, "Go from your college and your kindred and your father's house to the dorm that I will show you. And I will make of you a great nation, and I will bless you, and make your name great, so that you will be a blessing. I will bless those who bless you, and him who curses you I will curse; and by you all the dorms of the earth shall bless themselves.

So Jason went, as the Lord had told him; and Mike Hitchborne went with him. Jay was eighteen years old when he departed from YSU. And Jay took Bridge his wife, and Mike his brother's son, and all the possessions which had accumulated in his old closet, and the persons they had gotten in YSU; and they set forth to go to the CWOD of Christendom.

The Book of Dorms 13:

Then Jay said to Mike, "Let there be no strife between you and me, and between your Nintendo players and my Nintendo players; for we are kinsman. Is not the whole college before you? Separate yourself from me. If you take the left hand, then I will go to the right; or if you take the right hand, then I will go to the left." And Mike lifted up his eyes, and saw that the Regina Coeli Plain had better pluming like the garden of the Lord, like the land of Campion. In the direction of St. Lawrence; this was before the Lord destroyed St. Francis and St. Joseph's dormitories. So Mike chose for himself all the Regina Coeli Plain, and Mike journeyed east; thus they were separated from each other. Jay dwelt in the land of the CWOD, while Mike dwelt among the cities of the Plain of Regina Coeli and moved his possessions as far as St. Francis. Now the men of St. Francis were wicked, great sinners against the Lord.
